I remember well the circumstances under which we met. The army of the Potomac had been driven back from the disastrous field of Chancellorsville; the rebel hordes were already on their march into the heart of the North: and wounded, bleeding, and exhausted, the nation seemed to be gathering its powers for the final wager of battle which should determine its fate forever. The star of treason seemed to be in the ascendant. Rebels were exultant and patriots despondent. Vicksburg could never be taken; Port Hudson was impregnable; and Lee would soon lay New York in ashes. In two short months Grant had strangled Vicksburg; Port Hudson had fallen; Gettysburg, made immortal by victory, was consecrated by the graves of thousands of...
