Excerpt: . . . abnormal cases one or more is entirely absent. But probably in all ordinary or normal verbal consciousness each factor has a more or less influential part to play. It is the determination in a general way of the mutual relations of these factors as brought out by the study of lapses that we are concerned to seek. The motor or kinaesthetic factor is uniformly combined with the auditory or visual. This reduces the four factors in the above analysis to two, which we may call the auditory-motor and the visualmotor, or the auditory-kinaesthetic and the visual-kinaesthetic. By this connection of the two sets of factors it is meant to indicate, what we find to be a constant law of all mental process, that the sensori-motor arc or organic circuit is one process, that all thought and feeling tend to action, that all sensory naturally and inevitably flows over into motor activity and that all such activity is, in turn, reflected into experience as sensation. The first half of this principle has been diligently advocated in this country by Professor Baldwin in instructive researches on his children. According to this conception, the different elements of the speech faculty come under the law of what Professor Baldwin calls sensori-motor association, in the following forms: auditory, visual, speech-motor, hand-motor (writing) memories, the former two developed in and through the latter two. He, accordingly, distinguishes but two speech types, the auditory and the visual. The former is found...
