Rather, an Assessment Division official stated that the services cooperation is essential to implement the plan. Without sufficient structures and processes to coordinate and guide Development Efforts Have systems development, some combat identification projects have not been Not Been Effectively sufficiently funded. For example, as mentioned earlier, the systems Coordinated or Sufficiently analysis DOD planned to support development of an operational Funded architecture for combat identification has an estimated cost of 10 million. However, while the guidance for this analysis indicated that the Army should lead the effort with support from the other services, thus far only the Air Force has budgeted funds - 2 million - toward its accomplishment. In addition, the Combat Identification Assessment Divisions planned operational architecture is also unfunded at this time. Similar problems are occurring at the service level. Based on a review of the Battlefield Combat Identification System program, the DOD Inspector 11 General recently reported that the Army has obligated 132. 4 million in research, development, test and evaluation, and procurement funds through fiscal year 2000 and plans to obligate another 86. 5 million to complete development efforts and procure 1, 169 low-rate initial production systems from fiscal year 2001 through fiscal year 2007 for the 4th Infantry Division. However, the Inspector General also reported that the Army has not provided 918. 5 million of procurement and operations and maintenance funds for the programs procurement objective of 16, 414 12 systems. The lack of a management framework also makes it difficult to coordinate projects among the...
